

Your Existing Situation

Authoritative or in a position of power or leadership. Feels that current difficulties are causing problems and he is unable to progress further. Determined and commanding he strives for his goals despite the obstacles he faces.

Your Stress Sources

"Feels that life must give more than it has and that his hopes and desires should be fully achieved. His existing circumstances are causing him to be anxious and worry; he is on edge and fears his missing out on opportunity. Eager to avoid future setbacks or loss of status, he tries to make himself notice and to stand out and is in need of security."

Your Restrained Characteristics

Current events leave him feeling forced into compromise in order to avoid being cut off from affection or future cooperation.

"Finds satisfaction in sexual activity, but is emotionally detached which prevents him from becoming too involved."

Current situation is leaving him doubtful and cautious about becoming intimately involved with others.

"He is able to find satisfaction through sexual activity, but can be restless and emotionally distant so he never really gets too involved with others."

Current situation is leaving him doubtful and cautious about becoming intimately involved with others.

Your Desired Objective

"Is very goal oriented and driven, and does not allow things to distract him from reaching his goals. Overcomes all obstacles he is faced with. Wants to gain recognition and a good reputation for his successes."

Your Actual Problem

Is afraid he will be held back from obtaining the things he wants leading him to act out with a hectic intensity.

Your Actual Problem #2

"Is disappointed and let down, feels there is no point in making new goals as they will leave him feeling the same way. Looking for friendly, pleasant relationships with others, who will further develop his intellect. Feels his current relationships are empty and holding him back. Reacting with an intense desire to become involved in various activities aimed at achieving his goals."